VERIDIAN™

Veridian Non-Contact Infrared Thermometer

No Probe Covers Needed!

This non-contact thermometer is intended for monitoring body temperature. It can also be used to measure the temperature of objects. It features infrared technology that allows for temperature readings to be taken approximately 2-3 inches from a person or object. The automatic distance-finding sensor ensures the thermometer is at the ideal distance before a measurement is taken. To use, press the SCAN button and slowly move the thermometer toward or away from the forehead until the thermometer is continuously beeping and the LED light flashes. The beeping indicates that the distance required for the measurement is correct. Once the thermometer is consistently and continuously beeping, release the SCAN button. A few seconds later, the thermometer will beep once and show the temperature reading for 3 seconds. The thermometer will beep and shut itself off after approximately one minute of non-use. Accurate within +/- 0.5 °F. Includes 2 "AAA" batteries and a drawstring storage pouch.
